

Team project reflection

The purpose of this individual report is to give you an avenue to present your viewpoint as to how the project went, how the group worked together, and your role in the group. Each group member must complete this form to report on the contributions of yourself and the other group members. That information can, if needed, be used to adjust final grades of individuals. This is a private report, meaning that none of your classmates will see this report.

Evaluate each member of your group by writing the number that best reflects the extent to which they participated, prepared, helped the group excel, and was a team player. Use the following ratings:

Rating	Description
4	Usually (over 90% of the time)
3	Frequently (more often than not)
2	Sometimes (less than half the time)
1	Rarely (never or once in a great while)

Preparation. Prepared for group meetings and presentations; has spent time becoming familiar with the material relevant for the project; understands the project’s goal and expectations; does what they say they will do on time; attends and is on time to group meetings and presentations.

Group member name	Preparation rating
Ian	4
Sifan	4
Thomas	4

Participation & communication. Articulates ideas effectively when speaking or writing; work is without grammatical errors; listens to others; encourages others to talk.

Below, briefly describe the specific contribution(s) each team member (including yourself) made to your project. Point form is fine. Specifically, comment on the following areas:

- how the team worked together as a whole, including:
 - what was your role in the group? That is, what sort of things did you do to contribute to the evolution of the project?
 - what were the roles of others in your group?
 - Arturo: I usually worked on the data loading and data preprocessing part of the project, while also contributing to feature explanation.
 - Ian: Ian worked mostly on deliverables, like Jupyter books, deployment, and GitHub Pages.
 - Sifan: Sifan worked mostly on EDA and results for the model.
 - Thomas: Thomas worked on model building, model selection, and results.
- what went well and poorly throughout the team project experience? What went poorly: At the begining we had a rough start with the team contract, and we had some communication issues. What went well: Everything else! Our team was very communicative after the first milestone, where we all met in a Slack Huddle for hours just debugging and polishing the details.
